GENERAL VEAL RETIRES FROM MCCLELLAN

Major General William W. Veal, community leader and commander of the Sacramento Air Materiel Area for nearly five years, will retire July 28 at McClellan AFB.

General Jack Merrell, Commander of the Air Force Logistics Command, will present the retirement certificate at the 11 a.m. ceremony which will feature a jet aircraft flyover and performance's by both the 15th Air Force Band from March AFB and the Pipes and Drums, 1st Brigade, 91st Division Training, Army Reserve Bagpipe Band from Sacramento.

Succeeding Gen. Veal will be Major General George W. McLaughlin, who comes to the logistics center from duty as the Deputy Chief of Staff for Materiel at Headquarters Tactical Air Command, Langley AFB, VA.

Gen. Veal, who came to the Sacramento base in November of 1967, experienced both command and personal milestones while assigned to McClellan. In January of 1971 the SMAMA Commander, on behalf of the Air Materiel Area, received the Air Force Organizational Excellence Award which cited the installation's support of the Air Force in Southeast Asia and the Presidentially-directed Vietnamization program.

Nearly 12 months later, the 32-year military veteran was awarded the Eugene M. Zuckert Award, presented annually to an Air Force officer who exhibits outstanding managerial professionalism. Specifically noted, was the general's Vietnamization program, the development of the Small Business Office's contribution to President Nixon's Hardcore Employment Program and the initiation of the on-base Vocational Training Center for seniors in the Sacramento School District.

During the Toronto, Canada native's tenure, the AMA increased its role as a support base for aircraft weapon systems and commodities in nearly 40 countries throughout the world. There has been a continuing development of facilities for support of the F-111 program and recently the AMA was chosen to provide management and repair activities for the most current close ground support weapon system, the A-X.

Community involvement by base employees also received the General's emphasis. Encouraged by his leadership, McClellan's contributions to the United Crusade have totaled over $1.5 million during his five-year tour.

MORE

Working closely with the Chamber of Commerce and prominent business leaders, Gen. Veal has been instrumental in the development of the Military Task Force's program to insure the continuing presence of both McClellan and Mather Air Force Base as industrial and economic foundations in Sacramento.
